A History of the

Endacott

in Five Objects

(with a few digressions)

1. 1920's KU Basketball

PAUL ENDACOTT

Endacott is undoubtedly the best guard of the Valley. He not only received a unanimous berth on the mythical All-Valley five, but also much favorable comment from outside conference circles. Endy's dribbling, passing, and basket-shooting, as well as his spectacular guarding, showed Kansas supporters that he was a good forward-guard, as well as a stationary guard. His work will long be remembered by "loyal sons of Kansas." Endacott, captain-elect of next year's Jayhawkers, is a graduate of Lawrence High School. Paul has played two years at Kansas.

Lawrence native. Captain of the 1921-22 and 1922-23 KU championship basketball team. Player of the year. Later inducted into the Naismith Basketball Hall of Fame.

KU was a member of the Missouri Valley Intercollegiate Athletic Association (8 schools)

2. Adams Alumni Center

The idea of a KU Retirees organization is intimately tied to the construction of the Adams Alumni Center.

3. Oral Histories

Ray Nichols 1983-85

Joe Marzluff 1985-87

Endacott's first president, Chancellor Emeritis Ray Nichols, started the formal Oral History Project in 1982, however the oldest interview was done in 1981 of Engineering Faculty J. O. (Jacob Oscar) Jones (97 years old)

G. Bailey Price 1987-88

Margaret Peg Saricks 1988-89

4. Coffee Cup

The KU Retires Club first official coffee meeting was in 1983. Twelve members attended, and donuts (number unknown) were served.

5. Bell

For many years this bell has been rung in the Coffee meetings to announce the transition from the social period to the business period.

The names of our first four presidents are engraved on it.
